Sharon practices in the area of civil litigation with a focus on insurance defence. Prior to joining McCague Borlack LLP, Sharon completed her articles at an insurance defense firm in Toronto, where she gained experience in writing all manner of motion records and appeared before the License Appeal Tribunal and the Ontario Superior Court.

During law school, Sharon worked and volunteered at various organizations, including Community Legal Aid in Windsor and Legal Assistance of Windsor, gaining experience in landlord-tenant matters, social disability claims, and criminal injuries. These experiences trained Sharon in how to explain legal concepts in a clear and concise manner to her clients and to tribunal members.

Sharon's determination ensures she finds efficient and effective solutions for her clients. She strives to apply the skills she learned from her practical experiences to all relevant areas of the law.

Outside the office, Sharon enjoys playing strategic board games and trying new restaurants.
