Lyrica's practice encompasses a broad range of complex commercial and insurance litigation matters. She is a strategic litigator and is always striving to achieve creative and practical solutions for her clients at every stage of the litigation process. She has appeared as counsel before the Ontario Superior Court of Justice, as well as various administrative tribunals.

In law school, Lyrica served as a research assistant and editor in the area of tort law with Pro Bono Students Canada. Lyrica was also highly involved in the faculty's advocacy programs, where she competed in several moot competitions, most notably winning the best appellant factum prize at one.

In her spare time, Lyrica enjoys adventure travel, photography, action movies, and rooting for Tom Brady.
