Stephen's practice encompasses a broad range of complex litigation matters. As a zealous advocate, Stephen has appeared for clients at every stage of the litigation process and is motivated to resolve issues faced by clients in a prudent and innovative way. He has appeared before the Ontario Superior Court of Justice.

Prior to joining MB, Stephen obtained diverse litigation experience from a mid-sized Toronto Insurance Defence and Personal Injury firm. This gives him an insider's perspective on both sides of the litigation process enabling him to effectively advocate for his clients' needs.

In law school, Stephen participated in moot competitions held annually by Windsor Law and volunteered as a judge for first-year moot competitions. In addition, Stephen continues to be a mentor for multiple law students.

Outside the office, Stephen enjoys spending time at the cottage with his family and friends, and playing and watching golf and hockey. He is an avid Leafs fan, and never misses a game.
